TRYING TO AVOID A TRIAL.

LAMARTINE HUDSPETH DOES NOT WANT TO FACE A JURY.

Blayer of Joseph Kessner Seeks to Have the Indictment Quashed-Says the Grand Jury Was Illegally Drawn.

J. Lamartine Hudspeth, the slaver of Joseph Kessner, filed a motion of an unusual nature in the criminal court yestercay morning. He asked that the indictment against him for murder be quashed because the special grand jury which returned the indictment was not drawn according to law. He claimed, too, that because the first regular grand jury did not indict him, the special grand jury had no legal right to reopen his case. In his motion, Hudspeth first withdraws his plea of not guilty and moves the court to quash the indictment and strike it from the records of the court, because the special grand jury was drawn in this way:

"A list containing the names of twelve men was placed in the hands of the marthal of this court by the judge thereof, of which list nine of the names were of people living in Kaw township and three of Blue township, leaving six of the civil townships of Jackson county not repre-sented on said alleged grand jury."

The law, Hudspeth alleges, requires that the jury be drawn from over all the coun-ty.

The offense for which he was indicted, The offense for which he was indicted, Hudspeth says, was committed long before the impaneling of the regular grand jury of the September term of court. That grand jury investigated the charges against him and failed to indict, therefore the alleged special grand jury had no jurisdiction or lawful authority to reopen and investigate the case or return an indictinent.

THEIR TROUBLE JUST BEGUN. Confidence Men Who Impersonated Federal Officers to Be Severely

Dealt With.

Commissioner Nuckois yesterday morning issued warrants for "Boston Charlie" Marsh and George Coulson, alias Ivory Johnson, on the charge of impersonating a federal officer and swindling Adam Hocker and Raymond Randall, of Bolckow, cut of $3 each on January 3, at the St. Joseph stock yards. The men were in the city workhouse serving a 290 day sentence for swindling here a few weeks ago. When Mayor Jones was informed about the turn of affairs he issued a pardon for each of the men and the police turned them over to the federal officers, who took them before Commissioner Nuckols to answer to the charge. When arraigned Marsh announced with great seriousness that he had no attorney and no witnesses and wanted time to get ready for a defense. On his application Commissioner Nuckols set the hearing for next Saturday.

Marsh said that he was the victim of mistaken identity and he expected to be able to show that fact when the hearing took place, but the two boys whom he swindled were present, and while they did not testify they both agreed positively that Marsh was the man who represented himself ns the federal officer and that Johnson was the man who led them into the trap. Their identification was absolute and unquestioned. They had previously identified the photographs of the two men. Pension Inspector Anderson looked at Marsh and said he felt certain that he was it man who worked a swindle in Iowa f. r which Mr. Anderson caused his arrest at Sloux City in 1857. At that time the doge worked was to swindle a pension applicant by pretending to be a pension secret service worker and borrow money while Investigating the case.

MISSED THE GRAND MARCH. Why One Colored Swell Was Absent From a Social Function in

Roy Tilton, a young negro who lives at Twenty-ninth and Penn, wanted to go to out at Westport last night. He had engaged the company of a young woman for the occasion. But one very essential detail in his preparations was still lacking—he had not the wherewith to gain admitsince to the scene of the much-longed-for festivities. He felt that if he would retain the confidence of his escort he must complete his arrangements without delay.

With this idea still in his mind he visited the home of Mr. Vaughn, an intelligent colored man living at Twenty-third and McGee, and, seeing there two new school books belonging to Mr. Vaughn's daughter, Lallie, slipped them under his coat and went off thoughtfully downtown. Yesterday, just as he had completed a series of transactions netting him sufficient funds for his evening's entertainment, he was arrested and taken before Justice Spitz and in the evening while his "company" waited and wondered why he came not, he began disposing of a fifteen days' sentence in the county jail for petit larceny. had engaged the company of a young wom-

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe, Effectual Cure for It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied some times with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headache fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, ecated tengue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has a time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of

To secure a prompt and healthy digestion To secure a prompt and nearthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhai condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit soids.

These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

MRS. BAIRD ASKS A NEW TRIAL. Quotes the Language of the Court to Prove That Prejudice Existed

Against Her. Amanda J. Baird, the Christian Scientist healer who was recently fined $50 in the criminal court for failing to report a case of diphtheria to the board of health, filed a motion yesterday for a new trial, for the following reasons:

"The court reached its findings wholly "The court reached its findings wholly upon the court's opinions and prejudices against the doctrine of Christian Science, to which religious order the defendant belongs. That the prejudice of the court was shown and exhibited on the trial in the court's expressions; an example is as follows: I think a serious and monstrous wrong has been done in the community in the death of this child. I do not think the penalty is sufficient, and if I had the power I would make the fine $1,000. There has nothing come to my attention since I have been on the bench that strikes me so strongly as a wrong to the community as the death of this child. It is almost murder. I do not understand how the parents of this child can rest quietly under the circumstances. I don't understand it. I have known Mr. Kenney for a long time. He is an honest man, but he has been imposed on. This women has imposed upon the credulity of this community. Here in a Christian community a child lies and dies like a puppy in a kennel and no living human lifts a hand to help it. Fifty dollars and costs, Mr. Clerk."

If the motion for a new trial is refused Mrs. Baird will appeal to the supreme court.

WAS THERE A STEAL HERE? Inferior Paving on West Twentyfourth Street Causes Much

Complaint. A long suffering resident of the Fifth ward sends to The Journal a bottle of the macadam on West Twenty-fourth the macadam on West Twenty-fourth street. It has been only recently that this sort of pavement could be taken directly from the street and placed in ordinary eight ounce bottles without the intermediate process of liquefaction. But the West Twenty-fourth street macadam is quite thick; that is, it is from six to ten inches thick, though it runs like water, of which it is largely composed. In appearance it looks like a drab paint and the residents of that part of the city declare that a great deal of painting has been done with this material. Sidewalks, vehicles and even windows have been coated free of cost except the cost of removal.

The people on West Twenty-fourth street are indignant that their street is in such a frightful condition, and they intend to see if the council cannot be made to see the injustice of such neglect.

BRIGHT SETTING FOR DEATH

PLAIDS TAKING THE PLACE OF SOMBER BLACK.

Kansas City Undertakers Receive Visit From a Representative of a Fin de Siecle Furnishings Establishment.

"It won't be an uncommon thing before long to see funeral goods in bright colors was the assertion of a traveling salesman for an undertakers' supply house, yesterday. "Here are samples of coffins and cas-kets covered with bright plaid cloth. O, yes, a casket like that might cause a sensation at a funeral out here, but they are using a good many of them back East. But here are some milder ones-the kind to educate the trade."

And the drummer spread out his cata-logue on the table so the undertaker could get an idea of the "most fashionable coffins." He took from his satchel samples fins." He took from his satchel samples of cloth for casket coverings, and a number of samples of casket linings.
"You see, different people look at death differently," continued the drummer. "Of course, there are some who would think it a disgrace to bury a relative in anything but a deep, black casket. But why should not bright colors be the proper thing at a funeral?"

not bright colors be the proper thing at a funeral?

The drummer lit a cigar and permitted the undertaker to look through the goods which were somewhat astonishing to him.

"You know, a good many people look on death as a natural consequence, and do not believe in any mourning," resumed the traveling man. "Some man may die who has always liked bright colors, rather a stylish fellow, you know, and his relatives may not believe in any mourning. It has always been the custom to buy something in deep black or something in an oak finish, but now you can buy goods as dainty and tasteful in well blended colors as you like."

ish, but now you can buy goods as dainty and tasteful in well blended colors as you like."

After an hour's talking the drummer sold the undertaker a bill of coffins and linings to place in stock, but they were very mild in their colors compared with some the drummer attempted to sell.

But several other undertakers in the city have already placed "fashlonable" coffins in their stock.

"The idea of colors in funeral goods has been growing for the past year," said one of the undertakers. "I have sold a few caskets that have fancy figures of varied hues running through the coverings and the linings."

The undertaker went into his stockroom and displayed a number of caskets. One was an embossed silk plush covered casket, of bright purple. The casket was lined with white satin, but the satin was covered with a silk lace lining with bright purple violets worked into the lace. When placed beside a black broadcloth casket with heavy mourning draped along the sides the contrast was marked.

"But that casket is only a hint as to some of the brightly colored ones," said the undertaker, as he turned to another and lifted the cover from it. It was a brightly colored plaid cloth casket.

"That kind of cloth would make a flashy suit of clothes," ventured a young man who was noting the display of up-to-date funeral goods. The silk lace lining contained figures of various colored roses and carnations.

"When the corpse is placed in this cas-

When the corpse is placed in this casket and the lining arranged it has a beautiful effect," said the undertaker. "It looks as if the bright colored flowers were strewn all about the corpse, and leaves a good impression the corpse, and leaves a good impression."

Then the undertaker showed his door crapes. There were several deep black ones, and some white silk ones for children. But one contained all the colors of the rainbow in their brightest hues and with no attempt at blending them. It was actually as gorgeous as the up-to-date shirt fronts of last spring.

"I wouldn't think anyone but a Chinaman would have such crape on his door as that," was the remark that caused the undertaker to smile.

as that," was the remark that caused the undertaker to smile.

"I have used that crape twice within the past two months. One was at a funeral in one of the well-to-do homes in the southern part of the city. You must remember that people's tastes differ, and they are beginning to break away from the old custom of deep mourning for adults and pure white for children.

all speculation regarding his attitude and intentions in that connection. Yesterday he gave the press the following self-explanatory communication:

To Whom It May Concern:—In view of the fact that a great number of citizens, both Republicans and Democrats, have personally requested me to allow my name to be used as a candidate for mayor, it may not be out of place for me to make a public announcement of my position. In accepting the position of alderman two years ago, it was not from any desire to enter political life, but was in the fulfillment of what I considered to be a public duty, for I think every citizen if he can possibly attend to the work, is under obligation to accept a nomination for the council, if called upon to do so. On that ground I accepted the office of alderman, and during the term I have endeavored to honestly and conscientiously perform the duties to the best of my ability, and have received rather an unusual amount of the abuse that seems to necessarily go with the office. I have at all times applied the same rules of business to the public business that I did to my private business, and there is no rule that I apply to my private affairs that if applied to city affairs would allow me to vote to accept for the city that miserable piece of land commonly known as North Terrace park, at the exorbitant sum of $600,000.

Having given two years of service to public work, I feel that I ought not to be called upon for further service in any capacity, and, having no inclination for official life and no political aspirations whatever, I must decline to allow my name to be used as a candidate for either mayor or councilman. Respectfully,

The New Roman Woman.

Nowadays, when in every ladles' paper one sees perpetual instructions how to get rid of superfluous hairs, it seems almost incredible that women ever should have desired to have beards. Cicero relates that to such an extent did the beard mania among women grow that the beard mania among women grow that it was found advisable to pass a law against the "adornment."
